instruction may be displayed on one of the computers 231, 232, 233, on a display on the UPS 210 or PDU 220, or on some other monitor for providing instructions to a user. Following display of the instruction, the system waist, at step 311 until the user changes the switch 211. If the user properly changes the switch 211, the process continues to step 320. However, if the system determines that some other action occurred, such as the user changing switch 211 221 on the PDU 220, then the process proceeds to step 312. At step 312, the system determines whether the process can recover from the current state. If the process can recover, then the proper step to uncover recover, such as switching back switch 221, is displayed to the user. Of course, several steps may be required to recover from an error. In such a case, all of the steps would be displayed in order. Once the system has recovered from the error, the proper step 310 is displayed again to the user for execution. At step 312, if the system determines that the process cannot recover, then the process is terminated at step 350.   --
